Contest For Cleanest Town

American Fork Has Many Natural Advantages and Should Enter the Contest.

The efforts of the citizens were so successful on "Clean-Up Day" that several citizens have suggested that it would be well for the city to continue the good work during the summer, and by making the campaign a little more thorough we would stand an excellent opportunity of winning the state prize for the cleanest town in the state.

The Utah Development League is offering prizes for the cleanest towns, and any town may enter the contest. American Fork, because of its natural sanitary location, would have a handicap over most of the towns of the state in this respect. The homes generally are attractive and have well kept surroundings, and the visitor from other parts usually expresses pleasure at the up-to-dateness of the town. The people are progressive and our general reputation is that the people as a whole are a bunch of live wires.

With all these advantages to start with would it not be well to go after the prize for being the cleanest town in the state? It will be necessary for the Civic Improvement League or the mayor to make a formal entry in the contest. It would then be in order for the town to be districted off and a systematic clean-up campaign be continued throughout the summer.

It would cost some work and a little white lead and linseed oil, besides the use of a rake and a garbage can. But the honor that would come to American Fork for being the cleanest town in the state would be worth thousands of dollars, to say nothing of the local pride and good health that would result therefrom.

A COMMENDABLE WAY

What We Can Learn About Our Clothes Through Moving Pictures.

It is indeed commendable the way some manufacturers are taking the public into their confidence these days by showing them just how their products are made. There is only one way of doing this in a wide circulating manner and that is through the moving pictures where the manufacturer can bring the consumers' eyes and brains right into his own factory.

Those manufacturers who are honest and enterprising enough to follow this method of creating confidence in their goods are really entitled to all the benefits that are sure to accrue from such honest advertising methods. On Tuesday, May 5, we are to have an example of such an educational movement at the Opera House and on a commodity that we know little of in comparison with its importance to us.

That is the making of clothes. On the above date a film entitled "The Clothing Industry" will be shown. It takes us right into every operation of clothes as clothes should be made in a modern and sanitary manner. The film starts off with showing the herding of sheep, from there on various operations in shearing the sheep, assorting the wool, weaving the cloth, shrinking of the cloth and many other vital operations in building clothes.

The film also shows veils demonstrating the sanitary environment in which these clothes are made for the welfare of not only the manufacturer's employees, but the wearers of the clothes as well, to protect them from contagious diseases and unhealthy germs so often carried in clothes that are made in sweat-shops and in homes of unsanitary conditions.

The business end of wholesale clothing manufacturing is also shown by way of the manner in which clothes are advertised through the art departments, promotion departments and mailing departments. The welfare side of clothes-making is also shown by interesting scenes and athletic sports during the outings that are given by the manufacturers to

FINED $10 FOR ABUSE.

A local game warden was up before Judge Adolph Nielson on Thursday for abusive language used on a German fisherman. The fisherman was accused of breaking the law, but instead of arresting him the warden undertook to chastise him by using abusive language, for all of which he paid the city $10. The warden threatened now to have the fisherman prosecuted for threatening to kill.

The day before an Alpine citizen paid the city $8 for being intoxicated, and last week two Pleasant Grove toughs left $8 for the same offense.

SHEEP SHEARING FINISHED.

This week sheep shearing was finished in all the camps in Utah county and the one at Lofgreen, Tooele county. The plant at Faust, which operates machines alone, will be through in a few days. The plant at Webb's, west of Saratoga, closed the last of the week with about 40,000 fleeces to its credit. The one at Fairfield sheared about 75,000 head and the one at Lofgreen as many more.

The sheep are commencing to come through this city on the way to their lambing grounds and summer ranges. They are looking fine for this season of the year and the losses during the winter have been at a minimum. The fleeces are a little lighter than usual, but are much freer from grease and dirt than usual, and on the whole are more valuable. Those who held on to their fleeces are now receiving from two to five cents more per pound for them than those who sold in the winter.

Sidewalks or Mudwalks

YOU,

Mr. Citizen of this town!

Do you want your dollars to build sidewalks in this town, or do you want them to be used in building sidewalks in the big cities?

When you send your dollars to the mail-order man they are building sidewalks for him to walk on; when you spend them with the merchants of this town they will help to build sidewalks for you to walk on.

Why not assist in keeping your own feet out of the mud?

Why not assist in making this town a better place in which to live?

You can do it by spending your dollars with the merchants who are paying taxes in this town instead of with those who are paying taxes in the cities.

Are you willing to be a booster for your town, not for that of the mail-order man?

Think it over.

Pushing Development on Lehi-Tintic

George Nicholes came in this week to attend a directors' meeting of the Lehi-Tintic Mining company at Salt Lake City. The directors had intended shutting down for a period, but after listening to Mr. Nicholes' report they decided to levy another assessment and to resume work. While in Salt Lake City, Mr. Nicholes fed the following to a newspaper reporter:

North Tintic today is looking better than it has before in the past four or five years, according to George Nicholes, superintendent of the Lehi-Tintic Mining company, who was up from Eureka yesterday on business connected with the property. Not only is the Lehi-Tintic doing things this spring, but the Tintic-Delmar is opening up in good shape, the Selma is cutting out a road to get in new sinking machinery, while further north a number of properties have been active most of the winter.

At the Lehi-Tintic a force of men is now sinking on a big low grade vein of ore which is fifteen to twenty feet wide in places. This is on the Gold Blossom vein at a point about 440 feet from the surface. By carrying this drift 200 to 300 feet further it should reach the point of convergence of this ledge with the Empire vein. This work is 365 feet above the lower tunnel which, if carried in to this point, would give a depth of near 800 feet.

Mr. Nicholes says this Gold Blossom ore averages $6 to $7 a ton in lead and silver, the lead predominating. At places bunches of high grade ore appearing now and then, which assays up to 60 per cent lead and forty to fifty ounces silver. The main drift is now making straight north and is under an ore shoot which has been followed from the grass roots down, showing values all the way.

People who for the first time, generally after a deal of coaxing, are induced to venture into North Tintic and see such properties as these mentioned above, with a surface showing excellently by few of the old fifty-year producers in the heart of the camp, freely express their astonishment. They wonder how it is that North Tintic has been neglected so long. Mr. Nicholes says that he has had a number of experienced mining men look over that end of the district and all were loud in their praises and unstinted in their declarations that some day it would not be impossible for the center of the district to shift to the north end.

THE BOOSTER

You know the kind I mean—the man who always has a smile, no matter how discouraging an outlook he is facing. You meet him at all times, you never knew him to look on any side but the bright side of life.

Success in all lines is founded on the efforts of boosters. The booster is the direct antithesis of the knacker, and there is as much difference as between night and day—the booster being a thoroughbred and the knacker a grader. When the clouds of financial distress are hovering about us, the booster's busy day and night is painting rain-bows of success across the horizon. When things are the very worst you can hear the booster softly hummin' "there'll be a sunny day by and by." The booster stands four-square to all winds of discouragement, and will prevail and succeed where a whole army of commonplace wonders would not create a moment's interest. The booster is the type that builds up a city, always executing his moves in the business world with never a thought of there being a single possibility that he might fail. The word impossible has been stricken from his dictionary, and his sole slogan is "I will win." The booster inspires efforts that were never dreamed of; he is an increaser, a producer of joy, satisfaction, and bedrock results that mean vital things of life; he cares not for popular acclaim and applause but is satisfied with the result he produces. He boosts for the sheer love of boosting. While fortune kicks others she will give him a kiss. You will win more applause and know more of bliss if you join the ranks of the boosters.

THE TOWN ROW.

We had an ancient, vicious fray, at Pionktown-on-the-Heights, and people raised Old Ned by day, and filled with strife the nights. I helped to paint the village red, and fought our faction's foes; one day I had a busted head, the next a ruined nose; and oft my legs were in a sling, and life was so intense I couldn't smile or dance or sing for twenty-seven cents. One day I sat me down to rest, a poultice on my face, and then there came a stranger guest, a man of wondrous grace; "I've watched you scrapping far and near, to put your
